A LITTLE

SHOE TALK!

There has been a great deal of talk about the advance in leather during the past six months, and it is no fable--the fact exists. Have you thought of what this advance will bring about? Perhaps you haven't, let us tell you. Shoe manufacturers and most shoe merchants in their efforts to maintain old prices are going to keep up the outside appearance of their shoes at the expense of the inside and you know what that means--paper counters, spongy leather insoles, cotton stitching instead of silk, etc.

We have determined upon a different plan. We propose to keep our shoes up to the standard let them cost what they will. In many instances we will have to ask more money for them. On some of our shoes, however, we will not be able to do so, because we have been advertising them for years at an established price and to change the price would destroy all these years of advertising and to cheapen the quality would be to ruin our reputation. So, on these goods, rather than change either prices or qualities, we think it wise to lose our profits and live in hopes that there will be a decline soon.

This is our plan for the present. If the market continues to advance we may be forced to do otherwise.

Anderson's Wonderful $1.99 Shoe.

All of these brands will be kept strictly up to the high standard of the past and the PRICES REMAIN THE SAME.

CONVENTION OVER.

THE MEETING IN THIS CITY AN INTERESTING ONE.

MONDAY, AUG. 26, 1895.

MORNING SESSION.

The business session of the Press Association was held in Holland's open house Thursday morning, and was attended by about 150 members.

No business of great importance was transacted, but the meeting was a very interesting one throughout.

The convention was called to order by Chas. M. Meacham, chairman of the executive committee.

Mayor F. W. Dabney then delivered the address of welcome in a brief but pointed speech of about 10 minutes.

I. B. Nall, president of the Association, responded by cordially thanking the mayor for the hearty welcome extended the visitors and wound up with a fitting tribute to the "Queen City of the Pennywise."

Secretary L. W. Gaines then called the roll of membership and read his report showing a balance of $13,930 in the treasury of the Association after deducting all expenses incident to the annual session.

A photographer then took a picture of the group of pencil pushers and the Association adjourned to meet again in Atlanta to-day.

In the afternoon the guests were taken over the city in carriages and out to the asylum. On returning they were driven to Bethel Female College, where Dr. and Mrs. T. S. McCall spread an elegant lunch consisting of delicious refreshments served by about fifty beautiful young ladies of the boarding department of the institution.

CONGRESS OF FARMERS.

WILL Meet at Atlanta, Ga., October 10 to 16.

This Year's Session of the Farmers' National Congress Is to Be a Genuine Pan-American Agricultural Parliament.

Special Atlanta (Ga.) Letter.

The Atlanta Constitution recently said: "The Atlanta exposition will be a meadowland and able, bringing together the brightest minds of the country and many of the leaders in thought and action of the world. In these meetings the annual meeting of the Farmers' National congress, October 11 to 14, 15 and 16 next, promises to be the widest in its scope and perhaps in its influence. This congress is composed of delegates appointed by the governors of the various states and territories,

HON. B. F. CLAYTON,
President Farmers' National Congress.

each territory having one delegate and each state as many delegates as it has congressmen. At the last meeting thirty-six states were represented by their delegates and the attendance was from 1,000 to 2,000. This meeting was attended by the president of the National Editorial association, who said of it that this congress has been characterized by strong and decided opposition of politicians and fellows with wheel in their heads and visionary utopian schemes. It was a much abler congress than the one which recently adjourned at Washington. At the suggestion of the secretary of agriculture, the British provinces, the Central and South American countries and Mexico have been invited to send delegates to the meeting in this city, and the invitations have been generally accepted and the delegates are men of such caliber that it will be a pleasure to Mr. Clayton to have them present. It is generally believed that the volatile secretary of agriculture will have something to say. In speaking of the pan-American parliament, the Chicago Inter Ocean says: "It hardly is necessary to say that the Inter Ocean heartily approves of the project. Whatever tends to bring together the great agricultural interests of the world together is deserving of approval. Farming is now a trade of national and international relationship to all other trades. The interests of the modern farmer are well represented. The pan-American agricultural parliament is not only desirable but necessary."

The officers of the congress are: President, Hon. B. F. Clayton, of Iowa, one of the largest farmers of the country and for eight years secretary of the congress; vice president, Maj. G. M. Raines of Georgia, one of the largest truck farmers in the south; secretary, John M. Stahl of Chicago, the leading cotton grower of the north; assistant secretary, Col. W. G. Whidby, of Atlanta, an old newspaper man and successful planter.

JOHN M. STAHL,

The Farmer's Call said of the last meeting of the congress: "The delegates came from Montana to Florida, from the Dakotas, from the north and from the south. Men, coming such long distances, and placed against political action, must be in dead earnest and have the true interests of the agricultural classes at heart. No political or financial advantage can be derived from meeting at this meeting, hence the delegates were performed actuated by patriotic motives, and it is no surprise that the deliberations of the congress were characterized by a high tone and distinguished by lofty motives." It is hoped and anticipated that the meeting will justify as high praise as in the language of the Atlanta Journal, "mark the beginning of a new era in the history of agriculture."

An Unusual Occurrence.

They have queer stone-cutters down in Maine. Deacon Hackett lost his second wife lately, a scrawny and shrivelled woman, whose loss was not unmixed sorrow. Still, the deacon dutifully decided to give her a monument, and he accordingly engaged with the village stone-cutter as to the size of the slab, and finally chose a very narrow one at a bargain. The inscription was to be as follows:

SARAH HACKETT.
"She was thin."

But the stone was so narrow that there was no room left for the last letter, so the stone-cutter left it out, with this result:

SARAH HACKETT.
"Lord, she was thin!"
—Harper's Bazaar.

Outdoor Work Preferred.

Some years ago a young Irishman was hunting for a wife, and the farmers of the mountain town at harvest time. He made his application to a benevolent looking farmer who was attracted by the young man's frank, merry face, but was not very much impressed by his manners. "Can you crudely," he asked, after a moment's hesitation, "make a 'haw'?" repeated the young Irishman in bewilderment. "That I can, son, heh! the old world's a'avin children; but," he added, persuasively, "I could give me a job out a' duce, son!"—Youth's Companion.

AN INDIAN'S AWFUL FATE.

His Alcoholic Breath Caught Fire and He Was Burned to Death.

The manufacture of distilled spirits locally is a business which is carried on by the natives of Alaska for a long period, and at times during the early days of the Cassiar excitement the spirits were freely purchased by the white miners as the only liquor available, owing to the severe laws against the importation of liquors into the territory, says the Alaska Mining Record. Hoochino is nothing more or less than raw alcohol, being distilled mainly from brown sugar molasses and corn meal. Undiluted, it is a spirit of such great strength, makes "drunk com'ers" sick, and but a few swallows of it will set a man howling in demoniac glee, and nothing but an Indian, with his copper-lined stomach, can stand a protracted session of it.

The Kako Indians probably lead all others in the manufacture of these spirits and as proof of their knowledge of the art of making a double proof article, we give the particulars of the awful fate of an expert Kako distiller who was burning to death on that island. It seems that this Indian, while engaged in the manufacture of his little local oil can still, inhibited too freely of its triclinings and in a drunken stupor lay down by his fire of cedar logs and fell asleep with his face noseforemost near the fire, and the breath fanning the flames. Through the smoke known only to the medical fraternity gas accumulated in the stomach and the breath of the sleeper reaching the flames the alcohol gas ignited. The savage suddenly leaped to his feet with a terrific yell, and the fire fell back writhing in agony. The man was gaged internally. Smoke and even flames were issuing from his mouth and his agony was something awful. His loud screams brought the members of the camp about him, who looked on in amazement and impotency. What could be done for his relief. The combustion continued until the Indian was literally consumed inside and some time after the spirit of life had fled.

WOMEN SAILING SHIPS.

Striking Illustrations of Their Capabilities in the Seafaring Line.

It is a remarkable fact that ships are in charge of a woman. The wife of the captain of the Jefferson Bonner took her husband's watch occasionally when the vessel was short handed after the mutiny and murder of the officers. In 1850 the ship Denmark was brought into port by the captain, who, the captain himself being laid up, was incapable of doing anything except giving advice. Another striking illustration of woman's capabilities in the seafaring line is afforded by the case of the bark Rebecca Crowell, which left New York for Buenos Ayres, and was disabled during a severe gale three days after leaving. Several of the spars and sails were carried away, and the captain and first mate were injured to such an extent that they were confined to their berths the rest of the voyage and rendered unfit to manage the vessel.

There was no other person on board who understood navigation except the captain's wife, and she undertook the task of conducting the bark to the point of destination. The second mate was a young man twenty years old, able to take the helm, but ignorant of the process of making observations.

The captain's wife, therefore, assumed the command of the vessel, took observations, calculated the latitude and longitude, regulated the compass and her place on the sea and directed the course of the vessel. After exercising control for fifty-eight days, during which the vessel encountered violent gales and shipped heavy seas, she concluded that she had saved its valuable cargo, and safely into the port of Buenos Ayres. In this actual impersonation of "the sweet little angel that sits up aloft to keep watch for the life of poor Jack," the captain of the Rebecca Crowell was indeed fortunate in his matrimonial venture.

HIS RELIGION ALL RIGHT.

It Was Any Thing That Was Necessary for the Occasion.

In the "Reminiscences of an Emigrant Milesian" is the following curious anecdote: Stack, formerly of Walpole's regiment, was among the officers of the duke of York's regiment when he was promoted to half-pay at its dissolution. He had remained on half-pay so long that he became the oldest colonel in the army. He obtained his promotion to the rank of major-general after a somewhat curious interview with the duke of York. Having solicited the humor and indulgence of his royal highness, he received an intimation that the duke would receive him at the guard's house next day. He was punctual in his attendance, and being introduced to the commander in chief was honored by the customary question:

"Well, colonel, what can I do for you?"

"I perceive, sir," replied Stack, "that there is a brevet coming out, in which I hope to be included, and the senior colonel will be made a general."

"True, Col. Stack, but give me leave to ask you what of your religion are you?"

"I am of the religion of a major general."

The duke bowed, and Stack was gazetted.

Petrified Oysters.

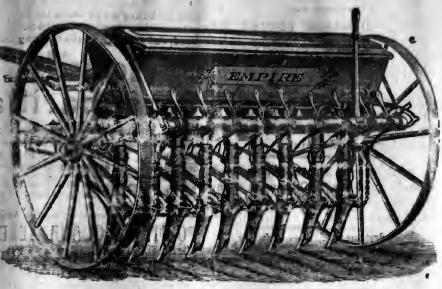

A bed of petrified oysters has been found on top of Big mountain, just back of Pechuck, Wyoming county, Pa. Some of the specimens are of mammoth size, one in Mr. Reynolds' possession measuring twenty-two inches long by nine inches wide and weighing forty pounds. The specimens range in size from a small one to the ordinary edible oysters of the present day. Some of the specimens show the eye of the oyster perfectly, and in all of them the meat is easily removed from the shell. The bed seems to be confined to a small mound, resting on a small plateau, at the extreme top of the mountain, near the Sullivan county line.

The Courier-Journal has been whipped into the support of the Democratic ticket in Kentucky by the Democratic country press of that state. It surrenders very reluctantly, it is true, but it surrenders. It says that the rest of the ticket is "unexceptionable," but that Gen. Hardin's attitude on the money question "engenders danger," which is solemn and senseless driveling. The Courier wages the Courier-Journal an oyster supper that Hardin leads the state ticket, that is, he will get more votes than any other man on the ticket—Evansville Courier.

Both the post-office department and civil service commission are taking interest in the movement toward putting the fourth-class postmasters under the protection of the civil service laws and it is probable that before the end of this administration the look for action will be taken. There are over 65,000 fourth-class post-offices in the country and the number is constantly increasing. Of these some 20,000 carry salaries of less than $50 per annum and at least half are in places where there is much greater difficulty in finding a competent and reliable person who is willing to serve, than in choosing between competitors.

At nearly every gathering in this end of the state the political situation is being discussed and it is not unusual that the vote for governor is taken. On an O. V. train enroute to Evansville a few mornings ago, the vote of passengers who were legal voters in the state was taken and resulted as follows: Hardin 45, Bradley 5. This seems to be about the ratio all along the line down this way.

McCracken county has four candidates for the legislature. Polk Brooks, Democrat; Maj. J. H. Ashcraft, Republican; Jo. A. Parker, Populist; Dr. J. D. Smith, independent. A. J. Brooks will be elected by a handsome majority Benton Tribune.

It is estimated that Col. Bradley will get 10,000 votes less this year than he ever received before in a state election. The Republicans all over the state are disgusted with him. They are not to be blamed, and have lost their usual enthusiasm for their leader.

The Kentucky Distillers' Association last week adopted an agreement to limit whiskey production in Kentucky for the next three years to 55 per cent. of the average output during the fiscal years of 1890-91-92.

Gen. Hardin is making a vigorous canvass of the state and is speaking to packed houses every day. The Democrats all over the state have buckled on their fighting uniform and will see to it that a big majority is rounded up for him in November.

People in Madison county, Ky., who have paid their taxes, are entitled to be married free by the sheriff and many young people in that county are taking advantage of the "dead head" system.

It takes a train of three cars to transport Fitzsimmons to his Texas training grounds. After his interview with Mr. Corbett it is possible that he can be returned by mail—Louisville Times.

The Populists of Logan county have nominated W. R. Browder for the legislature.

The Democratic Executive Committee of Ohio county has nominated Ben D. Ringo, of the Hartford Herald, for representative in place of S. R. Cox, who declined the nomination.

The discovery of counterfeit money has been made in the Frankfort penitentiary. Warden George has molds he took from Convict Dilworth, of Cattletown. The denominations are nickels, dimes and quarters.

Of the 200 consular positions protected by the new civil-service order three fourths of the number are held by Republicans.

Representative papers in the Cotton States predict that the price of middling cotton will reach 8 cents a pound in the near future.

A. C. Moore has been appointed county attorney for Crittenden county. He will hold office until the general election in '96.

Dr. Talmage will decide this week whether or not he will accept the call to the First Presbyterian church at Washington.

Maj. J. H. Ashcraft has been nominated by the Republicans of McCracken county as their candidate for the legislature.

Do not fail to register next Tues. day, Oct. 1.

Gov. Brown has named November 8 as Arbor day.

Second Week of Cotton States Exposition
ATLANTA, GA., Sept. 24, 1905.

ED. KENTUCKIAN:

The Exposition opened up yesterday with a greater crowd than expected. In spite of the torrid touch of the sweltering sun a great crowd made its way to the Magic City yesterday and remained there to inspect and perspire.

With the promise of the cool wave or rather cool wave this morning the present week promises to be more remarkable in attendance.

The sun has just now begun to set and the Atlanta people thus far towards the Exposition. There is now current an idea that the Exposition is in no shape for sight-seeing and that its incomplete condition makes it not worth the while to take the trip.

The many thousands that have thus far seen the fair have come with the intention of spending only a few days after the events at Louisville, Chickamauga and Knoxville, but the sights of the grounds and the realization that this is one of the grandest Expositions in history of United States caused them to quickly change their minds.

The good man "Friday" arrived here yesterday. He was a most picturesque specimen, with a matted lock of tawny hair, tangled mass of rugged beard, and a countenance blackened by the sun. He wore an abraded pair of ventilated trousers, with a hole in the seat, and a coat through which the wind whistled.

Will not worry my friends further about the sights, but extend a most hearty invitation to all, and trust that many will accept.

Obituary.

The funeral service of Judge James Ramsey Dabney, who departed this life Sept. 23, 1895, was conducted by his pastor, Rev. S. N. Vail, of the First Presbyterian church, Sept. 24.

He was the son of the Hon. Theo. C. Dabney and Susanna Ramsey, and was born in this city Nov. 6, 1848. He was married to Miss Ella Powell, of Quincy, Ill., Dec. 28, 1883, who with five children survive the death of her husband and father.

The Rev. J. A. Cook, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated at the service at the grave.

Judge Dabney was a man of sterling qualities and unusually intelligent, with intellect above the average. As attorney at law he had bright prospects for the future.

He was a member of the First Presbyterian church, and as such was his mother before him. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

A host of friends and relatives sympathize with the lonely wife and courageous mother, and will be glad to extend a helping hand to lighten the responsibility and lift the burden now in providence of God laid on her.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have running water or imperfect hearing, and when it is perfectly closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but a hardened condition of the mucous surfaces.

such a way that the child will realize there is a skillful person leading. A rude boy attending a lady's school gave her much trouble. She studied his disposition and found that he had a great desire to be doing something. She gave him many things outside of his regular work to do. So she, unknown to him, acquired great power of control over him.

INTERMISSION.

Prof. Owen then formed a class of young ladies and gave an interesting drill in callisthenics.

Prof. Arnett opened the discussion on geography. There are, he said, a considerable number of methods in teaching geography. Would use the question and answer method. Occasional excursions in the hands of a skillful teacher was a good plan to arouse interest—so written essays, imaginary journeys. Constant writing would help to keep the ever accumulating stock fresh.

Prof. Hopson thought geography was relatively about sixth in value of the common school studies. Not much time should be given to it in the primary grades. Geography and history must go hand in hand.

Prof. Donnel would devote much time to this work in the primary grade. The children were easily interested in this stage. He found drawing a great aid.

Prof. Cherry found that it is dry subject in his first year in school. With a pencil and paper the pupil would get a much clearer idea of the physical features of the continent. After a rain the observing teacher might find and point out in any gully many physical features such as capes, mountains, rivers, etc. Geography is a great aid to enlarge one's view to cultivate the imagination. He would not ask his pupils such questions as what kind of a climate has California? But having learned them what effects climate, such a latitude, altitude, ocean currents, precipitation, winds and so forth, would let them determine the climate for themselves.

Prof. Bartholomew said charity began at home; so should the study of geography, but should not end there. Showed how the use of the world would in the hands of the unskilled teacher might be misleading. A certain boy was asked to define a mountain, said sand in a box.

Here the teachers were requested to ask questions on any points relating to this work.

Prof. Hobson: "In geographical excursions what must we do with pupils not studying geography?"

Prof. Bartholomew: "Take them all along."

Prof. Duffy said this idea was successfully carried out in the schools of Germany.

Miss Dennis West: "How must we get the consent of the parents?"

Prof. Bartholomew: "No way but labor with them at their homes."

Prof. Sollee: "If a protracted meeting is in progress close to the schoolhouse will the teacher have the right to dismiss for a time the pupils on the meeting and with the consent of the trustees count the time as taught?"

The Superintendent thought not.

Prof. Bartholomew: "Our schools are non-sectarian, and should not be dismissed in the interests of any church organization. Religion is a personal matter with each one of us. The education of our children in the public schools is a matter of common interest to all."

HOW TO KILL SQUIRRELS.

New Method of Exterminating the Pest Discovered by a Spokane Man.

A. T. Church, of Spokane, has discovered a sure way of exterminating the arch enemy of the Washington farmer, the ground squirrel.

Mr. Church, a method of extermination, says the Tribune of that city, comes under three important discoveries which he has made by a close observation of the ground squirrel's habits.

He has discovered that a squirrel won't dig out of a hole if any obstruction is in the way, so he won't have to dig through solid ground.

A squirrel will not dig into a hole if it is obstructed so as to make its entrance difficult.

A squirrel will not traverse any extent of territory if he is not sure that there are plenty of holes in which he can hide if pursued.

In the vicinity of Mr. Church's place he has made a series of holes which he has made in the ground, and for a distance of ten feet the squirrels have entirely disappeared. If briar bushes are not handy, Mr. Church says a wad of paper will answer the purpose just as well.

The lover of the beautiful and artistic music will be given an opportunity on Thursday evening, Oct. 3, at the Tabernacle to hear Mme. Cecilia Epenhouse Bailey, the celebrated vocalists, pianist, actress and linguist.

Miss K. B. Epenhouse, who is both the author and historian, will give dramatic readings and scenes in scenes from such classics as "Les Forsaken," "Ophelia," "Romance and Juliet," &c.

Don't forget the musical concert at the Tabernacle, on Thursday, Oct. 3, at 8 p. m. by Mme. Bailey & Co. Mme. Bailey sings as naturally and happily as a bird, endowing every selection with a charming individuality. Her repertoire is extensive, ranging from the standard operatic and comic, and including simple current songs, and including costumed scenes from "Faust," "Mignon," "Martha," "Hamlet," etc.

In a word, Mme. Bailey is a rare compound of buoyancy, pathos, and artistic adaptability, possessing the elements of a great artist, and is as full and delicious in her selections and renditions. She will be assisted by her sister, Miss Epenhouse, a brilliant elocutionist.

The Louisville Times says she "would be taken for a Kentucky woman, and with added credit to Kentucky's reputation as the home of the beauty of her daughters, but for the knowledge that Chicago is her home."

Bar Resolutions.

The committee appointed at a call made by the members of the Hopkinsville Bar Monday, Sept. 23, 1895, to take action upon the death of Judge James Ramsey Dabney, would submit the following:

The members of the bar at Hopkinsville have heard with profound regret, not lessened by the fact that death has rapidly thinned our ranks of late, of the demise of our friend and brother, Jas. Ramsey Dabney, who has passed away in the midst of a family and friends in the midst of a useful and active life.

2nd. His learning and liberality, his integrity and benevolence, his gentleness and charity and affable bearing have in a short while made a deep impression upon us and upon those who have known and loved him.

3rd. In evidence of respect for the memory of our departed brother and our sympathy for the family, it is the sense and will of your committee that these resolutions be spread upon the records of our Circuit Court, and the Secretary furnish a copy of same to the friends of the deceased, and to be published in the city papers, and that the entire bar attend the funeral in a body.
